The present invention relates to a method of treating or purifying a mixed effluent from the processing of natural gas. More particularly, the method of the present invention relates to treating or purifying a mixed effluent by removing an impurity therefrom, to thereby provide a clean gas containing a low concentration of impurities suitable for fuel gases, or the like. It is well known that a mixed effluent from a processing of natural gas contains a large amount of impurities including condensates such as a light hydrocarbon or a metal compound (e.g., a heavy metal or a salt of alkaline earth metal), carbon monoxide,
